THE DRIVEN FELLOWS.

The incident told about on Sunday, where a gentleman who saw Boss Powers behind the Tuscara procession expressed surprise that the boss was not in front, and another bystander explained that whereas Powers formerly led the boys he was driving them now, should be suggesting to some of the men who are being driven. It should cause them to inquire whether they are going, and where they will haul up. As for a considerable number of those who are driven it doesn't matter where they go. They might as well be real Indians as painted ones. It is material to themselves and the community whether they are led or driven, whether they are Tuscara or cigar signs. But there are some gentlemen in the driven crowd who do not want to plunge into political oblivion. They are ambitious and in their hearts desire advancement and to stand well in the esteem of the people. These are the gentlemen who should propound some queries to themselves, and demand common sense answers. They should ask if they can afford to make wreck of their political futures as they are doing by permitting themselves to be driven outside of, and in direct antagonism with, what they claim to be their party. There is not an intelligent man among them who does not know that he is not acting as a Democrat. There is not one who does not know that he is opposing Democracy, is trying to make war upon the party organization, and is giving aid and comfort to the pronounced enemies of Democratic principles and practices. We do not believe there is one who thinks for a moment that his anti-Democratic society will receive any consideration in the Chicago convention, much less recognition by the national Democracy. To say that the great gathering in Chicago next month will admit to its councils as representatives of the Utah Democracy the delegates of a little band of malcontents who publicly proclaim themselves anti-Democratic and openly vote opposition tickets, is to say that the distinguished men who will assemble in the Garden City are not merely lacking in political intelligence but are downright idiots. Then where are the gentlemen now obeying the lash of the boss going to land? Do they ever think of the predicament in which they will be placed? Having read themselves out of the party at home and been repudiated by the national Democracy, with whom will they train? What will they call themselves? What can their boss do for them? There are not enough of them, if they all flock together, to cut any figure in affairs here or elsewhere, and it is certain that the result they are courting will not have a tendency to add to their numbers or bring them popular respect.

It is mighty little concern to Tuscara what becomes of the malcontents who have bowed down in such abject servitude to the Republican-Liberal-Tuscara base, but for their own sakes some of the decent men who are being driven astray should at least get away from the spell long enough to get intelligent answers from themselves to questions which are readily suggested.

SOLDIERS IN POLITICS.

A New York dispatch says a movement is on foot in that state to organize the ex-soldiers into a political league, the object, of course, being to control local and general elections. The telegram says the movement "may have important influence in the politics of the state," and that the soldiers are hopeful of building a powerful political machine.

Ever since the formation of the Grand Army of the Republic there has been an undercurrent of tendency in the direction of turning the organization into a great political machine. The rules of the order forbid this, and on the surface the posts are non-partisan, yet at times the partisanship has been so pronounced as to cause trouble in the organization. The movement noted in our telegraphic columns is undoubtedly intended to get around the obstacle in the charters of the G. A. R. and accomplish by direct methods what so many have tried to achieve by chicanery and indirection; that is to say, consolidate the "soldier vote" and thus make it an important factor in the nation's politics. The ultimate object, as a matter of course, is to gain money and place for the ex-soldiers.

It occurs to us that it would be well for the veterans not to proceed with this business. They may find it "loaded." No country never had braver or more patriotic soldiers than those of the United States. No soldiers ever did better fighting. And what is of importance to them is the fact that no other country ever rewarded its soldiers as this nation has done. Not only has the recognition of patriotic service been wholehearted and sincere, but the material reward has been generous to the degree of extravagance. This is proven by the fact that twenty-six years after the last gun was fired and peace was declared between the contending sections, the nation is paying $135,000,000 annually as pensions to the men who fought and their dependent relatives. The pension roll is greater than ever before known, its vastness telling of the appreciation and generosity of the American people. Not only has the nation been just in the matter of pensions, but it has provided by laws and department and bureau regulations for the employment of ex-soldiers in the public service, they being given the preference, other things being equal.

If the veterans now organize for political action it will be to proclaim that they are not satisfied with what has been done for them, and to enter the lists for more. And herein lies the danger to the old soldiers themselves. There is growing up in the country, and the sentiment is shared by a good many of the soldiers themselves, a feeling that the gratitude is largely on one side; that whilst the people appreciate what the soldiers have done the latter are not sufficiently appreciative of what the people are doing for the veterans. Within the past year an association has been formed of Grand Army members to eliminate unworthy pensioners from the rolls, and check, if possible, the extravagance which has grown up through too much generosity and out of a desire on the part of the politicians to avoid giving offense to the soldier vote. This association illustrates the growth of public sentiment, and it should be suggestive to the veterans of the probability of killing the goose which lays the golden eggs. In our opinion, just as sure as there shall spring up a political organization composed of ex-soldiers, just so certain will it arouse opposition on the part of the old parties, and instead of gaining friends the veterans will make enemies. The "soldier vote" is formidable and important; it would be a factor in local and general elections, but we do not believe it could hold the balance of power except in two or three of the states where the parties are evenly divided. It could not hope to do this in a national contest, except by trading and combinations which would very soon cause the soldiers to be executed by partisans everywhere.

If the veterans are not satisfied with what is being done for them, the way for them to get more is as citizens working through the old parties. Any other course will be fraught with danger.

ANOTHER WEAK GOVERNOR.

The self-respecting citizens of Idaho must feel a sense of shame and indignation over the course pursued by the governor in the matter of the miners' troubles, just as the self-respecting citizens of Wyoming feel humiliated on account of the course of their governor in the cattlemen's troubles. Idaho is a sovereign state, and should be a prosperous and proud one. Her people are enterprising and progressive; her valleys are fertile; her mines are rich, and in every respect she is attractive. Less than two years ago she threw off the chains of territorial vassalage, declared herself able to walk alone, maintaining a government republican in form, her emancipated people doctored full citizenship, and the vigorous young commonwealth which had been aided and assisted during its wretched childhood was proclaimed a free and sovereign state on equality with all the other states in the Union. It was a proud day for the good folks of Idaho when the word "state" replaced "territory" in the title of the commonwealth. But it seems to us that today most of these good people must be blushing with shame. Lately there has been a dispute between certain mine-owners in the southern part of the state and a few miners, 300 or 400 in all being involved. The trouble is over wages, and whilst it is more or less serious, and may lead to bloodshed before a settlement has been effected, it is not such an affair as should cause general alarm and put the state to rout. On Saturday some of the striking miners interfered with an incoming train carrying "cabs," imported from the east, and the railway officials applied to the governor for protection for their property and their rights. It was such an application as might with consistency be made under the circumstances, the county authorities perhaps being powerless to preserve order and afford relief. Governor Wallace at once confessed weakness and inability, virtually said that Idaho was in a state of disorder and rebellion which the constituted authorities could not suppress, and appealed to the president of the United States to send troops for relief and protection. He put forth no effort within the state. He made no attempt to test the state's power. The civil authorities were not applied to. The militia was not called out. The governor declared the weakness of the commonwealth, virtually proclaimed that Idaho could not maintain a state government, and falling to his knees applied the federal power to do what less than two years ago the Gem of the Mountains was proudly boasting her ability and readiness to perform for herself.

We say this must be humiliating to the self-respecting people of Idaho. In one sense it is disgraceful. It is a reflection upon the courage, the manliness and the law-abiding character of the Idaho people. It says they are lawless and lacking in patriotism. And does it not say that the admission of the state to the Union was premature? We apprehend a good many people in the east will say as much, and if they do, it is feared our friends and neighbors will be unable to successfully deny the assertion.

The Idaho people should protest against federal troops being imported to serve as constables and perform duties which the civil authorities should be able to perform. The state should insist upon vindicating the admission act, by enforcing its own laws and maintaining a republican form of government.

A MCKINLEY FACTORY STRIKE.

A Detroit telegram mentions an incident which should be respectfully referred to Governor McKinley with a request that he explain how it all came about. Detroit has a pearl button factory, one of those "infant industries" institutions which the people of this country are forced to foster by paying for the product two or three times what it is worth or what it could be obtained for if we were permitted to purchase it in the markets of the world. Only last February McKinley went to Detroit to attend the Michigan club banquet, and while there visited the pearl button factory and boasted about it as one of the labor-giving industries which had been established by the law bearing his name. He expressed gratification that American hands were now doing what had formerly been done by the pauper labor of Europe, and felicitated his hearers upon the circumstances that if it had not been for the enormous tax placed upon pearl buttons at our ports of entry, the money which the Americans in the Detroit factory were receiving would be going across the water to the miserable wretches of the old world.

Well, last Monday a week ago the 150 girls who run the pearl button machines in the Detroit factory struck against a reduction of wages ranging from 5 to 15 per cent. Some of the most expert girls had been receiving $4.50 a week, but the majority got but $3.50, while many could earn but $2. The labor was attended with much danger, and many of the poor girls have had their fingers pinched in the machinery and been unable to work for weeks. The occupation is also unhealthy, and most of the girls are said to be sickly in appearance. When it was proposed to cut down the starvation wages the poor creatures struck. The next day, however, the necessities of twenty of the girls drove them back to get the miserable pittance, when they were set upon by the strikers and the company called upon the police for protection.

The owners of the factory claim that notwithstanding the "protection" which the McKinley law affords, the tax giving to the manufacturers double what the buttons would be worth if there were no tariff, they are making no money and are compelled to reduce wages to the starvation point. It is presumed that Governor McKinley will say it is better that American girls should be brought to the level of the pauper girls of Austria and Portugal, and the American people should pay $2 for $1 worth of buttons, than the Austrian girls should have any American money and American citizens get their pearl buttons for what their are worth. That is the logic of the protectionist advocate, but it is the logic which will be set aside by the American voters next November.

THE SUPREME COURT of the United States has bored another hole in the Inter-state Commerce law. Last week it handed down a decision in a case involving the right of a railroad company to sell party-rate tickets, or tickets to ten or more persons at cut figures. The commission declared such sale illegal, but as the company kept on selling as usual, the action of which the Supreme court has now sustained, the latter holding that the sale of party-rate tickets is quite as permissible as though they had been commutation, mileage or excursion tickets. What makes the case more important still is the logical deduction relative to long and short hauls for freight, and if this feature goes, the whole structure falls.

THE PLATFORM of the Tuscara "no news" allegiance to Democratic principles as enunciated by the last national convention of the party. The Democratic platform of 1888, which this refers to, notes, among the chief principles of party faith, "devotion to a plan of government regulated by a written constitution, strictly specifying every granted power, and expressly reserving to the states or people the entire ungranted residue of power." Further, the platform maintains that "a just and liberal policy should be pursued in reference to the territories; that the right of self government is inherent in the people and guaranteed under the constitution." The objects sought by the Tuscara, being un-American and un-American, can of course find no warrant in any Democratic platform, enunciated either at the last convention or at any other time.

McKINLEY has been making a speech to a league of Republican clubs in Michigan, telling all sorts of stories about the Democrats. By his celebrated revenue law there is a tariff of 50 per cent. per pound on certain kinds of yarns, and these ought to be among them.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTIONS to send delegates to Chicago will meet this week at Grand Forks, N. D., today; tomorrow at Yankton, S. D.; Louisville, Ky., and Denver, Col., and Thursday at Nashville, Tenn.

NUGGETS OF NONSENSE.

Washington Star: A great many things are laid before Congress, but comparatively few of them hatch.

Columbus Post: The man who was "never overtaken by fear" must have been a mighty fast traveler.

Highampton Leader: The leap-year girl ought to visit the photographer. He'll take her readily enough.

Reids Horse: There are people who sing "I care not for silver and gold" who always come out ahead in a horse trade.

Elmira Gazette: Jason says that when it comes to stamping the country the campaign orator isn't in it with the forest fire.

Philadelphia Record: It is remarkable how healthy and strong the sprinters are, considering what fast lives they lead while in training.

Poston Transcript: A jockey just before he mounts a racer is the most stuporously serious and the most morbidly dignified being on earth.

Bradford Era: A mean man will do almost anything to beat a neighbor, but he never heard of a man mean enough to beat a neighbor's carpet.

Philadelphia Ledger: A correspondent reports, apropos of Secretary Blaine's health, that he did not look as well at a recent funeral "as he looked a week ago at the circus."

Pittsboro Up: In the Furniture Store—Lady: What has happened to those handsome sideboards you had when we called last? Salesman: (bashful, yet grateful)—I've shaved them off again, miss.

The success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is because it possesses true merit, and no claim is made for it which is not fully supported.

GOOD LOOKS: Good looks are more than skin deep, depending on a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look, if your stomach be disordered, you have a dyspeptic look, and if your kidneys be affected you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alterative and tonic, acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pinches, blotches, boils, and gives a good complexion. Sold at A. C. Smith's drug store, 50c. per bottle.

THIS IS PRETTY GOOD: Mr. John C. Goodwin, a carpenter of Danville, Ill., writes: "About two weeks ago a heavy saw log fell upon my foot very badly crushing it, so that I was unable to walk at all. I sent for a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment and kept my foot well saturated with it. It is now two weeks since this happened, and my foot is as healthy and as strong as ever. Had I not used Snow Liniment I should have been laid up at least 3 months. For healing wounds, sprains, strains and bruises, it has no equal. No inflammation can exist where Snow Liniment is used. You can use this letter."

Beware of all white Liniments substituted for Snow Liniment. There is no Liniment like Ballard's Snow Liniment. Sold by Z. C. M. I. drug department, 5

Dimples
 The old idea of 40 years ago was that facial eruptions were due to a "blood humor," for which they gave poach. Thus all the old sarsaparillas contain poach, a nauseating mineral, that instead of cleansing actually creates more eruptions. You have noticed this when taking other sarsaparillas than Joy's. It is however now known that the stomach, the blood creating power, is the seat of all vitiation or cleansing operations. A stomach clogged by indigestion or constipation, vitiates the blood, result pimples. A clean stomach and healthy digestion purifies the blood and dispels pimples. Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla accomplishes after the modern idea to regulate the bowels and stimulate the digestion. The effect is immediate and satisfactory. A short testimonial to contrast the action of the poach sarsaparillas and Joy's modern vegetable preparation. Mrs. C. H. Stuart, of 600 Hayes St., S. F., writes: "I have thus far had indigestion. I tried a popular Sarsaparilla but it actually caused more pimples to break out on my face. Hearing that Joy's was a later preparation and acted differently I tried it, and the pimples immediately disappeared."

Morning Noon Night
 Good all the time. It removes the languor of morning, sustains the energies of noon, lulls the weariness of night.

Hires' Root Beer
 delicious, sparkling, appetizing. Don't be deceived if a dealer, for the sake of larger sales, tells you some other kind is "just as good"—it is false. No limitation is as good as the genuine Hires'.
